

How can a domain ownership change from a customer to an...

Author:
Webservio Inc.

Created On: 05 Sep 2013 5:35 PM

Lets assume the following scenario:

Customer A wishes to transfer the handle of a domain to another organization: customer B.

What needs to be done is customer B should have an account at <http://services.webservio.net>. If the account does not exist you can create one. Once that is done Customer A would place a support ticket to authorize Webservio to transfer the domain to customer B. When placing a ticket please make sure that you specify the domain name and well as the new customer ID.