No. We do not backup emails that are sent to your domain if you are using our email hosting or shared web hosting services. Should your emails get deleted by a malicious person or by accident, we will not be able to restore your emails. We strongly recommend that our customers set up an email client in order to save their emails on their hard drive.

If you have important emails, it is a good idea to back them up by downloading them into an email client, or by saving the email content on your computer.

If you need a more reliable email backup solution, then please contact sales@webservio.net, and one of our representatives will be glad to help you.
